MASS CONVENTION SEPT. 9

To Nominate Candidates for the County Offices.

The Republicans of Breathitt county are hereby called to meet in mass convention at the courthouse in the town of Jackson, on Saturday, September 9th, 1905, at one o'clock p. m. for the purpose of nominating candidates for the various county offices of Breathitt county to be voted for at the November election, 1905.

All Democrats, young men becoming of age before said election, and voters of other parties who do not affiliate with us on party lines, but who are in favor of a free ballot and a fair count, an honest and economical administration of county affairs, equal rights to all and exclusive privileges to none, a fair deal to every man, and a redemption of Breathitt county are hereby invited to attend and help select a ticket to be composed of the best men of the county without regard to partisan points and who will best subserve the interests of the oppressed people of Breathitt county. By order of the Committee. This August 17th, '05. J. B. McLIN, Chairman B. C. R. C. KELLY KASH, Secretary.

District Convention.

Pursuant to a call of the Chairman of the Republican Committee of this, the 34th Senatorial District of Kentucky, composed of the counties of Breathitt, Magoffin, Morgan, Owsley and Wolfe, the Republican Committee met at Cannel City, Ky., on 10th day of August, 1905, to select the time and place to hold a district convention for the purpose of nominating a Republican candidate for State Senator in said district, to be voted for at the regular November election, 1905.

On motion adopted W. L. May was elected Chairman, and Benjamin Sewell elected Secretary of said meeting.

On motion adopted, it was ordered that the district convention be held at Jackson, Ky., on Friday, September 1st, 1905, at 1 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of nominating a Republican candidate for State Senator, and that county mass conventions be held at the county seats of the various counties in the district, on Saturday, August 26th, 1905, at one o'clock p. m., to select delegates to attend said district convention at Jackson Ky., September 1st, 1905.

On motion adopted meeting adjourned sine die.

W. L. MAY, Chairman.
BENJAMIN SEWELL, Secretary.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

I am a candidate for Representative of the counties of Breathitt, Magoffin and Lee, subject to the Democratic convention, or what action they may take. I am a Democrat of the old school, served four years in the Confederate army, have voted the straight Democratic ticket for 47 years, stood by all the nominees of the party, so I feel at liberty and believe that I have the right to ask the party to send me to the Legislature, where I can continue to do the party good, as I have always been loyal to the party, also all of my relatives before me. So I hope the people will consider my right to call upon them and the one interest in which I pledge myself to look after. J. P. MUNCY.

A Warning to Mothers.

Too much care can not be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute, but give the old-fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil causes and has a tendency to gripe. If this does not check the bowels give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipency and all danger avoided. The castor oil and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in cases of cholera infantum. For sale by the Jackson Drug Co.

A Judge and a Pistol.

A correspondent of Law Notes writes of the administration of justice in a certain insular possession of the United States where the island was under Spanish rule. Judge Z. had had a quarrel with an editor. The judge arranged with a hoodlum to insult the editor in order to provoke him to a breach of peace. A policeman to arrest the editor was a part of the "plot." The plot was carried out, but the editor kept his temper. The officer arrested him, none the less. He was haled before Judge Z., who found there was no case. The judge took from a drawer of his desk a revolver, silver plated and beautifully laid with gold and mother of pearl, showed it to the prisoner and informed him that the policeman had delivered the weapon to him as one taken from the person of the defendant and asked him what he had to say to the charge of carrying arms. The editor examined the weapon, put it in his pocket, admitted that he had had it in his possession, produced a permit from the Spanish authorities to carry arms and, with true Castilian politeness, bowed himself out and off with the judge's beautiful pistol.

The Only Way.

There is no way to maintain the health and strength of mind and body except by nourishment. There is no way to nourish except through the stomach. The stomach must be kept healthy pure and sweet or the strength will let down and disease will set up. No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, sour risings, rifting, indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles that are curable are quickly cured by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. Kodol digests what you eat and strengthens the whole digestive apparatus. Sold by M. S. Crain.

First Use of "Mazine."

"Mazine," properly a storehouse (Arabian), has been annexed by literature, but it is interesting to assist at the birth of its now common literary use in that venerable periodical, the Gentleman's Magazine. In the introduction to its number (731) we read: "This consideration has induced several gentlemen to treasure up, as in a magazine, the most remarkable pieces on the subjects above mentioned."—London Times.

Mean Thing.

"No," said Miss Passay. "I don't like the photos Kanter made for me. They make me look like a woman of forty." "Well," replied Miss Pepprey, "you should have told him not to touch them up if you didn't want them to look so youthful."—Philadelphia Press.

A Hard Cut.

Mr. Jawlack: Why are you not wearing your wedding ring? Mrs. Jawlack:—I wore it out doing housework!—Cleveland Leader.

An Old Chinese proverb says.

"Be very appreciative, and the people you admire will split in your face."

Take Kodol After Eating.

After a hearty meal a dose of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will prevent an attack of indigestion. Kodol is a thorough digestant and a guaranteed cure for indigestion, dyspepsia gas on the stomach, weak heart, sour risings, bad breath and all stomach troubles. L. A. Seper, of Little Rock, Ky., says: "Kodol Dyspepsia Cure deserves all the commendation that can be given it. It saved the life of our little girl when she was three years old. She is now six and we have kept it for her constantly, but of course, she only takes it now when anything disagrees with her. We feel grateful for the benefit derived from its use and would not be without it." Sold by M. S. Crain.

VENETIAN WOMEN.

They Have No Need to Bother Their Heads About Fashions.

The women of Venice are absolutely free from the rule which Dame Fashion exercises over their sisters elsewhere. They care nothing for modes. With them the loath of the skirt remains always the same, neither short nor long, and they always wear plainly made dark dresses, black stockings and the heelless slippers of the east. Hats are unknown.

The universal outdoor wrap for all ages and all sizes is the black shawl, with a deep silk fringe. It is folded with a short point above and a long one below, and sometimes it envelops the figure from head to foot. It is never fastened at the throat, and when it slips off it is gathered up with one outstretched arm, which makes the spectator think of a big bird stretching its wing.

In their attire the women of Venice are independent, only wearing local clothing, but, with feminine inconsistency, they are thoroughly up to date in the matter of hairdressing, the style of their coiffures changing from time to time, according to the vogue of the moment in London and Paris.

Grave Trouble Foreseen.

It needs but little foresight to tell that when your stomach and liver are badly affected, grave trouble is ahead unless you take the proper medicine for your disease, as Mrs. John A. Young, of Clay, N. Y., did. She says: "I had neuralgia of the liver and stomach, my heart was weakened and I could not eat. I was very bad for a long time, but in Electric Bitters I found just what I needed, for they quickly relieved and cured me." Best medicine for weak women. Sold and guaranteed by the Jackson Drug Co. at 5¢ a bottle.

ORIGIN OF LLOYD'S.

Humble Beginning of Europe's Great Maritime Agency.

Two centuries ago a man who had a cargo to send to the Mediterranean contrived to get rid of some of the risk by inducing a friend to take an interest with him. It was necessary to write out a statement of contract to which the guarantors subscribed. This was the first underwriting. These two men happened to be frequenters of Lloyd's coffee house in London, which was a favorite place for the merchants of the town to gather to discuss business or to gossip.

Others immediately saw the advantage of the scheme which their colleagues had devised, and on the next voyage the risk was parceled out among a larger number of the patrons of the coffee house. Out of this small beginning has grown the great European maritime agency, still bearing the name of the humble coffee house proprietor, and which not only writes risks on vessels, but rates them and publishes their arrivals at every port the world over, no matter how small or how remotely situated.—From "The Annals of the American Academy."

ANTIQUITY OF SILK.

The Product Was Worth Its Weight in Gold For Centuries.

The Chinese empress Si-Ling-Chi, 2630 B. C., was supposed to be the first woman to dress herself in silken raiment, though silk was used in the arts nearly 1,000 years before her reign. She was placed among the Chinese dynasties under the title of "Sien Thsan," which means "first promoter of the silk industry."

Silk was worth its weight in gold in many parts of the world for centuries. Its immense cost may be estimated by the fact that a silken garment is mentioned as one of the wanton prodigalities of the Emperor Heliogabalus, while a gown of the same material was refused by Aurelius for his empress on the ground that he couldn't afford the price. Such was the importance of the silk industry in China that the people in the principal growing and manufacturing district took the name of "Serics" and their country "Serica," from the word "Se," which in the ancient writings means "silk." A curious thing about silk is this: The raw material is produced by the cheapest labor in the world, while the finished product is among the most costly of merchandise.

Another Good Man Gone Wrong.

He neglected to take Foley's Kidney Cure at the first signs of kidney trouble hoping it would wear away, and he was soon a victim of Bright's disease. There is danger in delay but if Foley's Kidney Cure is taken at once the symptoms will disappear, the kidneys are strengthened and you are soon sound and well. A. R. Bass, of Morgantown, Ind., had to get up ten or twelve times in the night and had severe backache and pains in the kidneys and was cured by Foley's Kidney Cure. Jackson Drug Co.

Nothing on the Market Equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This fact is well known to druggists everywhere and time out of time will give their customers this preparation when the best is asked for. Mr. One Witmer, a prominent druggist of Joplin, Mo., in a circular to his customers, says: "There is nothing on the market in the way of patent medicine which equals Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. We sell and recommend this preparation." For sale by the Jackson Drug Co.

May She Ever!

Figure it out on a rose leaf and write with the brew of a lily that nowhere under the great blue dome is there a creature half so pretty as a Kentucky woman. She's prettier than an evening star in the shadow of a summer sunset, more inspiring than a thousand roses, and as bewitching as a fawn tangled in the vines of a wilderness of roses. She's our hope, our romance, our vine and fig tree—the light which enables us to see a million miles beyond the north star.—Springfield (Ky.) Sun.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold.

A. J. Nussbaum, Batesville, Ind., writes: "Last year I suffered three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several remedies which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar and it cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." Jackson Drug Co.

Shall We All Die of Thirst?

After telling of the gradual drying up of the great lakes and rivers all over the world in an article in Chambers' Journal, J. T. Whitty continues: "Everywhere in our own country, as in others, water springs are giving out and water beds drying up, slowly perhaps, but surely. The increase of population and the modern system of drainage have of course a great deal to answer for, but much of the drought is undoubtedly caused by the rapid destruction of timber on all sides, for trees not only attract rain clouds, but preserve the moisture of the soil. While it is impossible for any man to control the geological period through which we are passing and whose characteristics would be, according to some, the gradual disappearance of water, it may be inquired whether it would not be advisable to postpone that disastrous moment of a world without water as far as possible by the better preservation of our woods and forests and the persistent replanting of trees."

The Appeal to Our Sympathies.

The bilious and dyspeptic are constant sufferers and appeal to our sympathies. There is not one of them, however, who may not be brought back to health and happiness by the use of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. They also regulate the bowels. For sale by Jackson Drug Co.

The American Woman's Home.

Hundreds of thousands of American women are born to live their lives and die in boarding houses or hotels without ever finding time to create a home for themselves or without even feeling a desire to do so.—House Beautiful.

A Sign of Economy.

The Old Man—If I'm! Is he a saving and economical young man? The Sweet Young Thing—Indeed he is, I'm. Why he trims his cuffs!

Without earnestness there is nothing to achieve in life.—Gossett.

Given Up to Die.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was practically given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me relief and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." Jackson Drug Co.

He Knew Too Much.

A curious Malayan legend says that in olden times the waters surrounding Singapore were so infested with sharks as to make it impossible for the fishermen to pursue their daily task. A boy advised the rajah to let down into the water freshly peeled stems of the banana plant, and, this being done, the fish imbedded their swords in the stems and were easily killed. The boy genius was considered a danger to the throne, and he was executed lest he grow up and become a conspirator.

as a candidate for Justice of the Peace for Magisterial District No. 1, subject to the action of the Republican party.

The cry of bolter and other abusive epithets will not keep an honest man from voting against a criminal who has secured his place on the ticket by fraud.

Let the people select the very best men in the county for the various county offices on September 9th. We do not want a man on our ticket that has ever been indicted for any offense.

The call for the convention to meet here September 9th includes every honest man in Breathitt county. Let every one, that can, come and lend a helping hand towards redeeming Breathitt county from the reign of criminals.

An independent Democratic ticket for the various city offices has been nominated at Winchester. They are getting tired of the machine there also.

BOSSISM IN THE STATE.

Democrats of Western Kentucky have long looked with wonder at the patient submission of their brethren in Central and Eastern Kentucky to the bossism of little politicians, temporarily elevated to office places, in the matter of making nominations.

Methods of making nominations in Louisville, Covington and Newport and even in smaller places and some in the counties in the upper part of the state, surpass the understanding of our Democrats, or at least the patience and humility with which such nominations are accepted, are occasion of much surprise.

What would the Democrats of Paducah do if Clem Whitmore, state central committeeman for the First district, whose home is in Mayfield, but whose temporary residence is at Frankfort should come to town and fix up a slate for mayor and council, senator and representative in the legislature, circuit judge and a county ticket, and undertake to put it through by machine methods, such as have long prevailed in Louisville, Covington, Newport and other places?

They would tie a tangle to the coat-tail and start him down the Mayfield road lickety-split, and he would stand not on the order of his going.

Suppose Powell Taylor, of Henderson, state central committeeman for the Second district, should attempt such impertinent interference at Owensboro, or Hopkinsville, or Madisonville. Suppose Harvey McCutchen, of Russell, should try to run the politics of Bowling Green. What would the Democrats there do?

What has been the experience of the "deputy governors"—the men to whom all applicants for pardons or police judge appointments, or other favors from the executive office, must be made under the present administration? One by one they have been knocked down by the people as fast as they have bobbed up asking for office, until it is now almost fatal to be tagged as "deputy governor" in these parts.

The people of Western Kentucky never would and never will stand for political bossism. There have never been any bosses in this part of the State, nor dishonest primaries. Everything must be done on the square. We have leaders, but no bosses. And no real leader would attempt to interfere in local affairs outside of his own community.—Owensboro Messenger.

A convention was held in district No. 6 last Saturday resulting in the nomination of J. B. Noble for magistrate and William Combs for constable, but it is claimed Combs was not entitled to the nomination, McCager Neace, his opponent, having 41 majority, but in the midst of a great uproar it was given to Combs. Neace is still a candidate, subject to the action of the people. There are some hard feelings existing over the proceedings of the convention. It is to be hoped these conditions will soon disappear and man to man be united and every wrong thing be righted and the country be lighted as it should have been long ago.

St. Sterling Court.

About 2,000 cattle on the market and the quality was good. Trade was very brisk and sales quickly followed each other. At times it was all that the scales could do to weigh the cattle as fast as desired. The best 900 lb. to 1,000 lb. steers at $3.50 to $3.75, with lower grades at $3 to $3.25. Yearlings at $3 to $3.50; the latter price for some extra good ones. Heifers at 2 1/2 to 3c, with a few sales of fat heifers at $3.10 to $3.25. Cows at $2 to $2.50. Bulls, $2 to $2.50. A few hogs sold at $5 to $5.50. About 1,500 sheep sold at $4 to $4.50 for good ewes.

Mules were about the same. We saw a farmer refuse $185 per head for four heavy mules—he sold later at $190 per head. One thing you can bank on, mules are not going down in price. Horses are in demand and a good one sells at a big price at any time.—Advocate.

Clean Up.

Inasmuch as yellow fever is spreading in the South and with proper conditions, can go, and has gone farther north than Kentucky, and inasmuch as sanitary conditions here in Jackson are very bad and as said conditions are a menace to good health at any time, it behooves our citizens to get busy about their premises and pig pens and clean up. Sanitary precautions are cheaper than doctors and undertakers. Carbolic costs less than coffins. So clean up and do it now. Yours for health,

EBEN HOLDEN

By
IRVING BACHELLER

Copyright, 1904, by Lathrop Publishing Company

I walked slowly back to the office and wrote my article. When the printer came in at 12, I went to his room before he had had time to begin work.

"Mr. Greeley," I said, "here is my resignation. I am going to the war."
His habitual smile gave way to a sober look as he turned to me, his big white coat on his arm. He pursed his lips and blew thoughtfully. Then he threw his coat in a chair and whiped his eyes with his handkerchief.

"Well, God bless you, my boy," he said. "I wish I could go too."
I worked some weeks before my resignation was sent forward. I planned to be at home for a day, but they needed me on the staff, and I dreaded the pain of a parting the gravity of which my return would serve only to accentuate.

So I wrote them a cheerful letter and kept at work. It was my duty to interview some of the great men of that day as to the course of the government. I remember Commodore Vanderbilt came down to see me in shirt sleeves and slippers that afternoon, with a handkerchief tied about his neck in place of a collar—a blunt man of simple manners and a big heart, one who spoke his mind in good, plain talk, and, I suppose, he got along with as little profanity as possible, considering his many cares.

He called me "boy" and spoke of a certain public man as a "big sucker." I soon learned that to him a "sucker" was the lowest and meanest thing in the world. He sent me away with nothing but a great admiration of him. As a rule, the giants of that day were plain men of the people, with no frills upon them and with a way of hitting from the shoulder. They said what they meant and meant it hard. I have heard Lincoln talk when his words had the whiz of a bullet and his arm the jerk of a piston.

John Trumbull invited McCling, of whom I had told him much, and myself to dine with him one evening that week. I went in my new dress suit, that mark of sinful extravagance for which fate had brought me down to the pounding of rocks under Boss McCornick. Trumbull's rooms were a feast for the eye—aglow with red roses. He introduced me to Margaret Hull and her mother, who were there to dine with us. She was a slight woman of thirty then, with a face of no striking beauty, but of singular sweetness. Her dark eyes had a mild and tender light in them; her voice a plaintive, gentle tone, the like of which one may hear rarely if ever. For years she had been a night worker in the millous of the lower city, and many an unfortunate had been turned from the way of evil by her good offices. I sat beside her at the table, and she told me of her work and how often she had met Trumbull in his night walks.

"Found me a hopeless hethen," he remarked.

"To save him I had to consent to marry him," she said, laughing.

"Who hath found love is already in heaven," said McCling. "I have not found it, and I am in—" he hesitated as if searching for a synonym—"a boarding house on William street," he added.

"The remarkable thing about Margaret Hull was her simple faith. It looked to me no glittering generality for its reward, such as the soul's 'highest good'—much talked of in the philosophy of that time. She believed that for every soul she saved one jewel would be added to her crown in heaven. And yet she was no Jew! Upon her person, her black costume was beautifully fitted to her form, but was almost severely plain. It occurred to me that she did not quite understand her own heart, and, for that matter, who does? But she had somewhat in her soul that passeth all understanding. I shall not try to say what, with so little knowledge of those high things, save that I know it was of God. To win patience and any arduous effort she had schooled herself I was soon to know.

"You do not find any one else like her," said McCling.

"No, madam," said he, "but I have a nighty fear in me, remembering the twenty-fourth verse of the twenty-fifth chapter of Proverbs: 'It is better to dwell in the corner of the house than with a bawling woman in a wide house.' We cannot all be so fortunate as our friend Trumbull. But I have felt the great passion."

"He smiled at her faintly as he spoke in a quiet manner, his 'rs' coming off his tongue with stately roll. His environment and the company had given him a fair degree of stimulation. There was a fine dignity in his deep voice, and his body bristled with it from his stiff and heavy coat of blond hair, parted carefully on the left side to his high heeled boots. The few light hairs that stood in lonely abandon on his upper lip, the rest of his hair was always well shorn, had no small part in the grand effect of McCling.

"A love story?" said Miss Hull.

"No, I had your confidence, I like a real, true love story."

"A simple starchy it is," said McCling, "and I am proud of my part in it. I shall be glad to tell the story if you care to hear it."

"I assured him of my interest.

"Well," said he, "there was one Tom Douglas at Edinburgh who was my friend and classmate. We were to get a good bit of the time, and when we had come to the end of our course we both went to engage in Journalism at Glasgow. We had a mighty conceit of ourselves—you know how it is, Brower, with a green head—but we were a mind to be modest with all our learning, so we made an agreement—would play his horn and he would blow mine. We were not to lack in preparation. He was not to lack in execution, and every day he wrote an article. I went up and down the line of his work for a week or two, and he did the same."

"If any one spoke of him in my hearing I said every word of flattery at his command. 'What Tom Douglas,' I would say, 'the man of the Herald that's written those wonderful articles from the law court? A genius, sir, an absolute genius.' Well, we were rapidly gaining reputation. One of those days I found myself in love with as comely a lass as ever a man courted. Her mother had a proper curiosity as to my character. I referred them to Tom Douglas of the Herald. He was the only man there who had known me well. The girl and her mother both went to him."

"Your friend was just here," said the young lady when I called again. "He is a very handsome man."

"And a noble man," I said.

"And didn't I hear you say that he was a very skillful man too?"

"A genius," I answered. "An absolute genius."

McCling's response and laughed heartily as he held up a slip of paper.

"What happened?" asked Miss Hull.

"She took him on a walk," said I.

"He answered," said I.

"Trumbull," said I.

"Then she made us to know many odd things about her work for the children of fortune, inviting us to come and see for ourselves. We went to go the next evening."

I finished my work at 9 that night, and then we walked through noisome streets and alleys—New York was then fast becoming so clean a city as now—till we reached the mission house. As we came in the door we saw a group of women sitting before the altar at the far end of the room and heard the voice of Margaret Hull praying—a voice so sweet and tender that we bowed our heads at once and listened while it tickened the life in us. She pleaded for poor creatures about her, to whom she gave always the most abundant love. Weeping they were more sinners than sinners. There was not a faintest shadow of cant in her petition. It was full of a simple, unconscious eloquence, a higher feeling than I dare try to define. And when it was over she had won their love and confidence so that they clung to her hands and kissed them and wet them with their tears.

The same sweet manner that had charmed us the night before. There was no change in it. We were to walk home with her, but she said Trumbull was coming.

"So that is," said I.

"What do you think of her?" I inquired.

"Wonderful," said he.

"I never heard such a voice. It gives me chills. Every other voice as the crackling of thorns under a foot."

"I came back to the office and wrote my article. When the printer came in at 12, I went to his room before he had had time to begin work."

fine new suit of clothes reading a paper, while a boy was blacking one of his boots. I sat down, awaiting a more favorable moment. A very young man had come into the room and stood timidly holding his hat.

"I wish to see Mr. Greeley," he said.

"There he is," I answered. "Go and speak to him."

"Mr. Greeley," said he, "I have called to see if you can take me on the Tribune."

The printer continued reading as if he were the only man in the room.

The young man looked at him and then at me with an expression that moved me to a fellow feeling. He was a country boy, more green and timid even than I had been.

"He did not hear you. Try again," I said.

"Mr. Greeley," said he, louder than before, "I have called to see if you can take me on the Tribune."

The editor's eyes glanced off at the boy and returned to their reading.

"No, boy, I can't," he drawled, shifting his eyes to another article.

And the boy, who was called to the service of the paper in time, but not until after his pen had made him famous, went away with a look of bitter disappointment.

In his youth Mr. Greeley was all ways the best material, that soon took on a friendly and dejected look. The famous white overcoat had been bought for $5 of a man who had come by chance to the office of the New Yorker years before and who considered its purchase a great favor. That was a time when the price of a coat was a thing of no little importance to the printer. Tonight there was about him a great glow, such as comes of the tailoring and new linen.

He was so preoccupied with his paper that I went out into the big room and sat down, awaiting a better time.

The printer's going to Washington to talk with the president," said an editor.

Just then Mr. Greeley went running hurriedly up the spiral stair on his way to the type room. Three or four compositors had gone up ahead of him. He had risen out of sight when we heard a tremendous uproar above stairs. I ran up two steps at a time, while the high voice of Mr. Greeley came pouring down.

"Look at that!" he cried, pointing to a blue jay that was perched on a fence post, and he talked with his mouth wide open. There are a lot of little people in the thickets who are always in such a hurry and talk so fast that it is difficult to tell what they say. There is that gayly colored little fellow the red start, crying, "Tweety wee-wee-wee-whist," and the dainty summer yellow bird, who has something to say in the same line and mood in the same manner. What he wants is wheat, and although he never eats it, his constant cry is, "Wheat, wheat, wheat, wheat, wheat, wheat."—Dan Beard in Recreation.

John W. Dean had a pain in his back for about five years and it finally became so great that he could not work and, in fact, could not walk at times. Several physicians failed to cure him, but he found a remedy. It was Smith's Kidney and Nerve Tonic. For sale by S. H. Stidham & Son, Jackson, Ky.
